

RENT Houses, Rooms or Apartments for 30c.

Tell the Story in 14 Words, insert it in Sunday's World, and get a Result. Sunday House, Room and Apartments. Advs. Repeated FREE in Monday's EVENING WORLD.

PRICE ONE CENT.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

SEVEN ARE UNDER ARREST.

Ex-Police Capt. Doherty and His Minions Taken Into Custody.

ALL CHARGED WITH BRIBERY.

Old Hugh Clark Also Indicted Along with His Fellow Ex-Sergeants.

HAS LIEBERS SKIPPED OUT?

Detectives Unable to Find Him—Doherty's Bail $10,000, the Others $5,000 Each.

As a result of the indictments predicted in "The Evening World" yesterday bench warrants were issued late last night for the arrest of ex-Police Capt.

EX-CAPT. DOHERTY.

paid money to them all, from the Ward Men up to the Captain, either for protection in her nefarious business or for the privilege of herself becoming surety for the inmates of the resort when they were arrested.

Her testimony was not only corroborated, but suggested by similar evidence furnished by other witnesses.

HUGH CLARK.

None of the ex-police men were arrested until this morning. Shortly after 9 o'clock six of them were rounded up by Police Headquarters by Detectives Sergts. Von Gerichten, Reilly, Titus and McCauley and Detectives Carey, Wade, Cuff and Mann.

The prisoners were Ex-Sergts. Clark, Jordan, McKenna and Charles H. Parker, and ex-Ward Men Hook and Bernard Meehan on the charges of bribery and extortion.

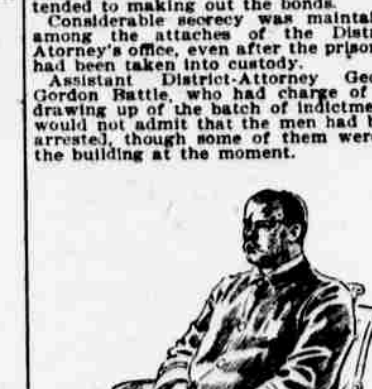

EX-WARD MAN MEEHAN.

Michael Doherty, ex-Sergts. Hugh Clark, James W. Jordan, George C. Liebers, Felix McKenna and Charles H. Parker, and ex-Ward Men Hook and Bernard Meehan on the charges of bribery and extortion.

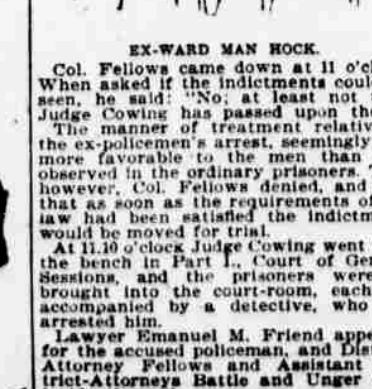

G.C. LIEBERS.

The evidence upon which the indictments were found was furnished by witnesses who appeared before the Lexow Committee during its earlier sessions, and later before the Board of Police Commissioners, by whom the accused officers were tried, found guilty and, with one exception, dismissed from the force.

G.C. LIEBERS.

This single exception was old Hugh Clark, grown gray and grizzled in the Department, who was permitted to retire in consideration of his long and, up to that time, meritorious service. It seems likely, however, that while this saved him from punishment at the hands of the Department tribunal it will be of little avail in the criminal proceedings now begun.

FELIX MCKENNA.

All the accused men at the time their "Felonies," interrupted Col. Fellows. Col. Fellows then asked Judge Cowing to fix the amount of bail in each case. Judge Cowing said he would fix the bail for Capt. Doherty at $10,000, and for the others at $5,000 each. Mr. Friend argued that this bail was much too high, particularly in the case of Capt. Doherty. He said that Capt. Doherty could give bail in $2,000.

Judge Cowing said he would take that matter into consideration; that he did not want to be harsh or unjust with anyone, but that the Captain was charged with a felony, and he thought $10,000 the proper amount.

The detectives who have been after Doherty, at 11 o'clock, said he had fled. He could not be found at his house or any of the places he usually frequented.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Alleged Republican Committee Employee in a Saloon Row.

Policeman Malloy, of the Grand Central Sub-Station, arrested three prisoners at the Yorkville Court this morning. They were Cornelius H. Farrell, thirty years old, of East Ninety-sixth street; Thomas Carey, thirty-two years old, of 106 East Forty-third street; and James Kearney, twenty-seven years old, of 35 Third avenue. Farrell charged the two others with assault and robbery, and he was accused of impersonating a detective by Saloon keeper Patrick Lynsky, of 121 East Forty-first street.

At 5:30 yesterday afternoon Farrell rushed into the police station and declared that he had been assaulted and robbed of $10 in Lynsky's saloon. Policeman Malloy accompanied Farrell to the saloon, where he pointed out Carey and Kearney as his assailants.

Lynsky told the officer that Farrell had trumped up the charge for spite. He added that Carey had wanted to buy the saloon and had paid $100 to bind the contract, while Farrell had come and said that he was a detective, and demanded to see the license.

Lynsky said he refused to show Farrell the license and put him out of the place, and that Farrell then made his complaint.

In court Farrell said he was employed by the Republican State Committee. Judge Cowing hid the name of the Republican State Committee and the proposed to make a personal investigation. The case was adjourned to Tuesday and the prisoners were paroled.

FAVORABLE FOR BULLS.

Stock Market in Bull, but Prices Hold Firm.

The week closed with a very quiet condition of the stock market. Exchange, but a more confident feeling prevailed, and prices worked toward a higher level. The bulls predict a rise on the improvement in railroad earnings, the phenomenal ease in money and the efforts to shake holders out of their stocks.

The short interest is heavy, and forms an important element of support. The fact that gold shipments this week have been lighter than expected, and that the dollar is overvalued, has decided the market, also had a good effect.

Burlington & Quincy rose 1/4 to 74 1/4; Distillers, 1/4 to 16 1/2; American Oil, 1/4 to 31 1/2; Western Union, 1/4 to 31 1/2; United States, 1/4 to 31 1/2; St. Paul, 1/4 to 31 1/2; New York Central, 1/4 to 31 1/2; Reading, 1/4 to 31 1/2; American Sugar, 1/4 to 31 1/2; Chicago Gas, 1/4 to 31 1/2; General Electric, 1/4 to 31 1/2; and Louisville & Nashville, 1/4 to 31 1/2.

A COLORED MAN STABBED.

William R. Higgins Refuses to Tell the Police Who Cut Him.

A tall colored man walked into the Thirtieth street police station at 2 o'clock this morning, and said he wanted a doctor, as he had been stabbed. He took off his coat and showed two wounds in his left shoulder that were bleeding profusely and had evidently been made with a dull knife.

He gave his name as William R. Higgins, and he was twenty-five years old, and lives at 127 West Thirty-third street. He refused to tell who he had come by the cut.

At New York Hospital, where he was subsequently taken, he said that as the wounds were slight.

While other officers attended the matter, but could learn nothing.

BIT GOV. FLOWER'S WIFE.

A Pet Bulldog Attacked Her While Being Fed.

Mrs. R. P. Flower, wife of Gov. Flower, is suffering from wounds inflicted by a pet bulldog, which sprang and bit her on the chin Wednesday at their residence, 67 Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Flower had been caressing the animal, which had been reared a pet in the Flower family. Suddenly the brute sprang at her and fastened his fangs in her chin.

Her courage and presence of mind saved her from severe injury. She spoke sharply to the dog and he ran away.

Thomas H. Allen, of 52 West Forty-fifth street, was summoned and dressed the wounds. Mrs. Flower had sufficiently recovered Thursday to join the Governor at Albany.

A THIEF IN DISGUISE.

Ex-Senator Gibbs's House Robbed by a Clever Ruse.

The house of ex-Senator Frederick S. Gibbs, at 47 West Twenty-second street, was robbed a week ago last Monday by a thief in the guise of a workman. The robber got several hundred dollars' worth of diamonds belonging to Mrs. Gibbs, who is visiting him.

After the robbery, the thief of the robbery, Mr. Gibbs left word at a factory for a workman to be sent to his house to deliver a package. The package was probably overheard by the thief, who arrived at the house before the man from the factory and used the opportunity for robbery.

RESCUED AT SEA.

Steamer Durham City Has an American Crew Aboard.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The British steamer Durham City, Capt. Thompson, which sailed from Boston on Oct. 5 for London, passed the Lizard at noon today, having on board the crew of the American schooner Alice T. Boardman.

The Alice T. Boardman, water-logged and abandoned, was picked up by the fishing schooner Hattie M. Graham on Oct. 17, and the crew was brought to the court-room, each one accompanied by a detective, who had arrested him.

Lawyer Emanuel M. Friend appeared for the accused prisoners, and District Attorney Fellows and Assistant District Attorneys Battle and Unger were

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

SHE WANTED TO DIE.

Mrs. Cassie Wilkins Attempts Suicide in a Cell.

Severs an Artery in Her Wrist After Being Locked Up.

Arrested While Quarrelling with a Young Man on the Street.

Mrs. Cassie Wilkins, a pretty blonde, living at 24 Livingston street, Brooklyn, was arrested this morning for disturbing the peace and attempting suicide by cutting her wrist after she was locked up.

Cassie was quarrelling on the sidewalk in front of her home with a young man who said he was Edward Decker, of the same address, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning when a policeman came along and ordered her to go into the house. She was scantily attired and had no shoes on her feet. She had evidently been drinking and resented the policeman's interference, and the officer arrested her. She was taken to the Adams street station and transferred in a patrol wagon to the Clermont avenue station. After being searched by Matron Cox, she was locked up in a cell. Half an hour later Matron Cox found a small penknife outside of Cassie's cell, and, on examining it, she discovered blood upon it.

The girl was lying upon her cot, and when the matron entered her cell she found blood upon the floor.

Cassie admitted cutting herself. She said she had hidden the knife in her shoe while riding in the patrol wagon to the Clermont avenue station. Ambulance surgeon, who was called, said the wound was not dangerous.

FATAL COLLISION ON THE BAY.

Near Red Hook in the Fog.

TOWBOAT SANK INSTANTLY.

The Ferry-Boat Mauch Chunk Ran Her Down and Cook Nichols Was Drowned.

THE CRASH CAUSED A PANIC.

The Tug Palmer Also in Collision with the Freighters Na-hua—A Typical London Mist.

During the heavy fog this morning the ferry-boat Mauch Chunk, which is running on the Thirty-ninth street, Brooklyn, ferry, but which is owned by the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, ran into and sunk the tugboat F. A. Kirkham, which belongs in Harlem. Earn Nichols, the cook on the Kirkham, was drowned.

A large hole was made in the side of the ferry-boat at 7:15 o'clock off the foot of Dykeman street, Red Hook.

The Kirkham had in tow a schooner, the name of which cannot be learned. She was bound for Boston with a cargo.

The Mauch Chunk, on her way to this city with a large number of passengers, came up alongside of the tug and the ferry-boat pilot, not seeing the smaller craft, turned off his course a trifle and struck the Kirkham at a right angle.

A large hole was made in the side of the Mauch Chunk, and she sank within a few minutes.

Capt. Edward Monks, Fireman T. J. Firms and Deckhand Acton Lively jumped into the river and were picked up by the tug Carver, which happened along.

Nichols was unable to get off the boat in time and sank with it. He lives in Mott Haven, but beyond that fact little is known.

The passengers on the ferry-boat were thrown into a great state of excitement by the crash, and for a time there was a panic. Women screamed and men shouted, and some of the more timid ones fled to the shore.

The Mauch Chunk was towed to Brooklyn, where her passengers were disembarked. She was not badly damaged. The schooner was later taken in tow by the tug Carver.

About the same time another collision took place in the river opposite Grand street.

The freight steamer Na-hua, of the Stinson Line, was just opposite Grand street, East River, at 6 o'clock this morning when the heavy fog drifted in from the sea.

It was impossible to see twenty feet ahead, and the Na-hua was struck by the tugboat Carver, which was anchored nearby.

Hardly had the chains dropped rattling down the bow, when the tugboat Carver, towing a float of empty cars, was sighted bearing down on the Na-hua.

Warning whistles were quickly blown and the engines of the Palmer promptly reversed.

The order came too late to check the tug's headway, and she crashed into the Na-hua's port side at a point about amidships.

The gunwale of the Na-hua was slightly raised, and the Carver's bow struck the Na-hua's side, and the latter was thrown off her course.

The amount of the damage done to the Na-hua does not exceed $10,000.

The freight steamer Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

The Na-hua was bound for New York, and the Carver was bound for New York. The Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

The Na-hua was bound for New York, and the Carver was bound for New York. The Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

The Na-hua was bound for New York, and the Carver was bound for New York. The Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

WENT DOWN WITH THE TUG.

Fatal Collision on the Bay Near Red Hook in the Fog.

TOWBOAT SANK INSTANTLY.

The Ferry-Boat Mauch Chunk Ran Her Down and Cook Nichols Was Drowned.

THE CRASH CAUSED A PANIC.

The Tug Palmer Also in Collision with the Freighters Na-hua—A Typical London Mist.

During the heavy fog this morning the ferry-boat Mauch Chunk, which is running on the Thirty-ninth street, Brooklyn, ferry, but which is owned by the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, ran into and sunk the tugboat F. A. Kirkham, which belongs in Harlem. Earn Nichols, the cook on the Kirkham, was drowned.

A large hole was made in the side of the ferry-boat at 7:15 o'clock off the foot of Dykeman street, Red Hook.

The Kirkham had in tow a schooner, the name of which cannot be learned. She was bound for Boston with a cargo.

The Mauch Chunk, on her way to this city with a large number of passengers, came up alongside of the tug and the ferry-boat pilot, not seeing the smaller craft, turned off his course a trifle and struck the Kirkham at a right angle.

A large hole was made in the side of the Mauch Chunk, and she sank within a few minutes.

Capt. Edward Monks, Fireman T. J. Firms and Deckhand Acton Lively jumped into the river and were picked up by the tug Carver, which happened along.

Nichols was unable to get off the boat in time and sank with it. He lives in Mott Haven, but beyond that fact little is known.

The passengers on the ferry-boat were thrown into a great state of excitement by the crash, and for a time there was a panic. Women screamed and men shouted, and some of the more timid ones fled to the shore.

The Mauch Chunk was towed to Brooklyn, where her passengers were disembarked. She was not badly damaged. The schooner was later taken in tow by the tug Carver.

About the same time another collision took place in the river opposite Grand street.

The freight steamer Na-hua, of the Stinson Line, was just opposite Grand street, East River, at 6 o'clock this morning when the heavy fog drifted in from the sea.

It was impossible to see twenty feet ahead, and the Na-hua was struck by the tugboat Carver, which was anchored nearby.

Hardly had the chains dropped rattling down the bow, when the tugboat Carver, towing a float of empty cars, was sighted bearing down on the Na-hua.

Warning whistles were quickly blown and the engines of the Palmer promptly reversed.

The order came too late to check the tug's headway, and she crashed into the Na-hua's port side at a point about amidships.

The gunwale of the Na-hua was slightly raised, and the Carver's bow struck the Na-hua's side, and the latter was thrown off her course.

The amount of the damage done to the Na-hua does not exceed $10,000.

The freight steamer Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

The Na-hua was bound for New York, and the Carver was bound for New York. The Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

The Na-hua was bound for New York, and the Carver was bound for New York. The Na-hua was carrying a large cargo of goods, and the loss of this cargo was estimated at $100,000.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

J. A. FROUDE IS DEAD.

The Famous Historian Passed Away at Early Morn.

Rallied but Once in the Course of a Long Illness.

Sea of an Archdeacon—Chose Literature Instead of Orders.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—J. A. Froude died at 6:30 this morning.

James Anthony Froude, a disciple of Thomas Carlyle in politics, the object of Prof. Edward A. Freeman's bitter attacks as a historian and the foremost writer of his day in his department of literature, achieved the high distinction of Regius Professor of History of Oxford early in April, 1892. This official recognition of Froude, by Lord Salisbury as Premier of England, occasioned comment at the time for the reason that Froude's predecessor in office was Prof. Freeman, a historian whose literary methods and style were directly opposed to Froude's, and because some forty years before Froude's first book, "The Nemesis of Faith," brought about him such a storm that he was forced to resign a professorship in Oxford. Such a radical change in the opinions of the Oxford authorities was the subject of no little discussion.

Froude was never a strong churchman. One of his most notable publications was a protest against the reverence of the Established Church for what he called "Hebrew mythology," but this did not bring the authorities to his literary standing, and he received the recognition due his work.

As a historian Froude was esteemed brilliant, but careless of details and often inaccurate, the English literary world was for a long time divided between the supporters of Froude's style and those of the pedantic methods of Prof. Freeman.

James Anthony Froude was the son of a Rev. R. H. Froude, Archdeacon of Totnes, Devonshire, England. He was born on December 22, 1818. He took a course at Oxford and was elected a Fellow of Exeter College in 1842. He was at first inclined to take holy orders, but on mature deliberation adopted literature.

Froude's early publications were "The Lives of English Saints," a volume of stories, "The Shadows of the Clouds," and the speculative work referred to above, "The Nemesis of Faith." Subsequently he wrote a number of articles in historical subjects for Fraser's Magazine and the Westminster Review.

In March, 1859, Froude was installed Rector of the University of St. Andrews. Three years later he visited the United States and delivered a series of lectures on "The English in Ireland in the Eighteenth Century," which were favorably received. He received an appointment from the English Government in 1874 to institute inquiries respecting the Kaffir insurrection at the Cape of Good Hope, and made an elaborate report on the subject.

Besides the literary efforts mentioned, Froude wrote a variety of works, the principal ones being "The History of England from the Fall of Wolsey to the Defeat of the Spanish Armada," a work in twelve volumes; a treatise on "Calvinism," and "Short Studies on Great Subjects." In his "History of England" Froude endeavored to show that Henry VIII. was a much better man than he had been commonly represented, and that Queen Elizabeth was indebted to the statesmanship of her ministers for her high reputation as a sovereign. On Mary Queen of Scots Froude was exceedingly severe, and statements regarding this unfortunate Queen have given rise to many sharp controversies.

BOY AND JEWELRY MISSING.

Capt. McNamara Reports His Loss to the Police.

Capt. Michael McNamara, of the tug Luckenbach, reported to the police this morning that Emil Hammer, the mess boy, had disappeared, and that the Captain's gold watch, chain and wristband pin, valued in all at $200, had also vanished.

He thinks the boy has gone to Buffalo, where he has relatives.

Strange Disease Killing Indians.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 20.—J. N. Hoch, an old Cochiti Indian, stated yesterday that the Indians of the Cochiti village are dying on an average of one each day, as the result of a peculiar disease. He says the disease is first noticed by severe pain in the head, which results in a swelling of the neck. He says the Indians have applied to the Indians at Santa Fe for aid.

Condemned Murderer Rescued.

HERMANN, Mo., Oct. 20.—Edward Murray, who was to have been hanged here yesterday for the murder of Edgar Plutwitt, conductor on the St. Louis and North Western railroad, at St. Louis, Mo., has been rescued pending an appeal.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.

RUSSIA'S DYING CZAR.

An Unkind Report that He Has Been Badly Nursed.

Sympathy and Prayers for the Depot in Republican France.

Meir Apparent Must Be Married at His Father's Bedside.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Early this afternoon a despatch from St. Petersburg announced that the latest reports received there from Livadia indicated that although the Czar was still alive, he was rapidly weakening.

A striking fact in connection with the Czar's illness is the difference of opinion regarding the exact nature of the malady from which he is suffering. The Paris Figaro to-day declares that the symptoms displayed with the usual symptoms of kidney disease and states that there is a conflicting side to the Czar's illness, which has perplexed his physicians.

The Figaro adds that one of the Czar's sisters a fortnight ago received an official communique, stating that the Czar was suffering from a tumor below the left kidney, respecting which the doctors disagreed. Prof. Zacharoff was convinced that it was cancerous, and that it was impossible to operate upon it. This was his ground for recently informing the Czar that he could not possibly live.

Prof. Leyden, however, was more optimistic, and after a careful study of the symptoms expressed the belief that it was true that tumor existed, but that it was of a benign nature and curable.

The Figaro then proceeds to make the startling charge that the Czar has been badly nursed, and that the arrangements for his care were quite of a primitive nature. This statement is somewhat unkind, as it is known that the Czar's most assiduous nurse has been the faithful Czarina, who, according to rumor, has been breaking down under the strain of attending continually upon her dying husband.

There is no doubt that, outside of Russia, great interest has been taken in the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the French people, says that there is not a corner of France where prayers have not been offered up for the recovery of the Czar, and that the health of the Czar is felt in France.

The Temps, in an article which may be regarded as an expression of the general feeling of the